MAMMALS

Mammals are a diverse classification of animals that include the following distinguishable characteristics: a backbone (vertebrates), warm-blooded, hair or fur, and feed their babies with milk.

All mammals give birth to live young, except two Australian animals - the echidna and platypus, which lay eggs (and are called monotremes). This means that mammals tend to spend more time caring for and teaching their young, than other classifications of animals. Animals that are not mammals include reptiles, amphibians, fish and birds.

Mammals are found all over the earth. Being warm-blooded means they are able to maintain a stable body temperature regardless of their environment. For example, polar bears can survive in freezing conditions, while camels can survive the hot, dry desert.

The blue whale is the largest living creature in the world, and is a mammal. Bats are the only mammal that can fly.

1 Why do mammals care for their young longer than other classes of animals? _____

Bossy 'e'

Literacy
Grade 1

GRAMMAR

Bossy 'e' is when the 'e' on the end of a word bosses the proceeding vowel, turning it into a long vowel sound (ie the vowel says its name instead of its sound).

The bossy 'e' is actually silent - we see it, but don't say it.

eg: rode - we say the letter 'o' in the word, but the 'e' is silent.

Read out loud the following words and circle the ones that follow the bossy 'e' rule:

hide

time

slime

love

made

cafe

horse

ate

are
